To qualify as a lemon, the defect must:

- Be covered by the vehicle's warranty
- Substantially impair the vehicle's use, value, or safety
- Not be caused by the consumer's abuse or neglect

What are my rights under the California Lemon Law?

If you believe you have Free Downloaded a lemon, you have certain rights under the California Lemon Law, including:

- The right to have the vehicle repaired or replaced by the manufacturer.
- The right to a refund of the Free Download price or lease payments.
- The right to compensation for damages, such as lost wages, rental car expenses, and attorney's fees.

How do I file a Lemon Law claim?

To file a Lemon Law claim, you must first contact the manufacturer of the vehicle and give them an opportunity to repair the defect. If the manufacturer is unable to repair the defect after a reasonable number of attempts, you may file a claim with the California Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV).

The DMV will investigate your claim and make a determination whether the vehicle is a lemon. If the DMV determines that the vehicle is a lemon, the manufacturer will be required to provide you with a remedy, such as a replacement vehicle or a refund.

What is a "reasonable number of attempts"?

The California Lemon Law does not define what constitutes a "reasonable number of attempts" to repair a defect. However, the courts have generally held that a reasonable number of attempts is between three and four.

What if the manufacturer refuses to repair or replace my vehicle?

If the manufacturer refuses to repair or replace your vehicle, you may need to hire an attorney to file a Lemon Law lawsuit on your behalf. An experienced Lemon Law attorney can help you protect your rights and get you the compensation you deserve.
