What is Police Psychology?

Police psychology is the application of psychological principles to law enforcement. Police psychologists work with law enforcement officers to improve their mental health and well-being, enhance their performance, and reduce the risk of misconduct. They also provide consultation and training to law enforcement agencies on a variety of topics, including stress management, crisis intervention, and use of force.

The 21st Century Police Officer

The 21st century police officer faces a number of challenges that were not faced by their predecessors. These challenges include:

- Increased crime rates

- The rise of terrorism
- The use of social media
- The increased scrutiny of law enforcement by the public

These challenges have led to a greater need for police psychologists. Police psychologists can help officers to cope with the stress of the job, make better decisions, and interact more effectively with the public.
